Hongrong, July 6rn. 1883.

SIR JOHN POPE HENNESSY, in acknowledging the remarks addressed to him by an unofficial member of the Council of Govern. ment on the occasion of his swearing in at Mauritius, is reported to have said that no . Governor could hope to do any good for the colony unless he availed himself, of the advice of his Connoil. We have not His Excellency's exact words before us. for it p.m., on the Bund in front of Messra. Fearon, would seem that the local papers do not give shorthand reports, but this seems to have Officers' Steward of H. I. G. M. S. We can only hope, for the sake of the Mauritians, that their new Governor will act upon the opinion ! to which he gave expression. He certainly seldom or never did so in Hongkong, the frequent mistakes he to select his own advisors, irresponsible individuals, whose views were likely to coincide and experience were best qualified to assist can as yet be placed on the opinions of the Mauritius papers as to Sir John Pore Hen-Exest, since they have had no experience on which to found a judgment. It may be noted, however, that the Merchants' and best, unless, indeed, Sir John Pors Han -The last named paper says it is no use dis-

All this, says our contemporary, would be anything but attractive in an ordinary man, but what would be at Singpore en route to Manile had on board a faults in another may be useful qualities Manils, consisting of two deedgers, eight in a Governor having to direct the affairs lighters, and a steam tag. They came out in country where anything in the shape of a liberal political constitution is Harbour Works Commission, a managing fitter unknown. We confess the matter does not strike us in the same light. In a colony possessing representative institutions the the scheme for which, though brought forward power of a Governor for evil is limited: in a Crown Colony he can, to a great extent, do what he likes, and when he happens to be a waspish person, splenetic, and impatient of opinions differing from his own, he can make named Miriam, the wife of a Maliy samed things extremely unpleasant for those under Bakar, residing at No. 2, Albert Street, near there was no reason to fear that it would be anhis rule, apart altogether from the permanent evil he may be doing to the Colony. The Home Government, however, seem to be awaking to the evils attending the autocratic rule of Governors in Crown Colonies. A Governor who deliberately opposes the views of a body of members so elected will incur a grave responsibility and will have to advance very good reasons indeed to justify his action to the Colonial Office. The new arrangement will supply a much needed check on what, so far as the public are concerned, has hitherto been practically the irresponsible action of governors. It has been said that the best form of government is a benevolent autocracy, and if Crown colonies could only have the "benevolence" of their autocrats guaranteed, and also their ability, they would probably not care to disturb existing arrangements, as they possess few men who can spare the time to devote to politics that Members of Parliament at

The American team for Wimbledon has been phosen, and Americans confidently look for success. The men are Hiuman, Dolan, Paulding, Vankeusen, Pollerd, Smith, Shakespeare, and Howard, all of whom were members of the team of 1882; and Scott, Bull. Joiner, Stewart, Cash, Brown, and Rabbetts. They think on the other aids " that the rifles were in fault in the late trial. and say Smith's score was the bighest in 1882: he made the same number in the present competition, but now ranks the fourteenth.

THE STINGY FLORIST. A once famous Parisian florist, named Bachelier, having procured some rare anemones from the East, would not part with a root, either for love or mouey. For ten years he contrived to keep the treasures to himself, until a wily Senator paid him a visit, and, walking round the garden, observed that the cherished anamones were in seed. Letting his robe fall upon the plants as if by accident, be so swept off a number of the little feathery seeds, which his servant, following dloss upon his heel brushed off his master's robe and secretly appropriated, and before long the niggardiflorist had the mortification of seeing his highly prized "strain" in the possession of his neighbours and rivals __All the Year

CARDINAL MANNING. Cardinal Manning is in his seventy-fourth year. He is the son of the late William Manning, M.P., and Governor of the Bank of England, and was educated at Harrow and Baliol, migrating thence, after taking the highest honours, to become a Fellow of Merton. He is a typical public school man, and could scarcely have been at any but a fashionable public school. Men who have manners, may be thorough men of the being at home in any society, from the rough to the courtier, and simple, unconqualities, which, joined with his birth and his father's position, gave him, even as a very young man, a commanding influence in Oxford society, which raised him to be of thirty-two, and which have made him so he joined it. They have also given him his brother-in-law, the late Bishop of Winchester, smarting under the desertion of his friend, and unable to deny himself the use of epigram, called him the "apostle of the genteels." - He became Rector of Lavington and Graffham in Speech in 1834. and married the youngest Miss Serjeant, one of the co heiresses of the Lavington property, two other sisters having married Henry Wilberforce, his brother, Mrs. Manning survived ber marriage but a few months. When the spiritual grace the very essence of religion, there was indeed worn, only by noble widows, tied round the nowhere to turn but to the Church of Rome. deacon Manting shook from his feet the toward which his steps had so long unconsciously been advancing; when no doubt he
